Since 1998, Foreword has been the only review publication exclusively dedicated to reviewing books from independent and university presses. In print and online, our readership consists of a loyal trade audience including librarians, booksellers, rights agents, plus avid readers and industry professionals. The importance of a vibrant indie press community cannot be underestimated, and our readers rely on Foreword as a trusted source of credible, beautiful book reviews and other services designed to give more visibility to indie titles and their publishers.
Our readers want to know about your books.

A readership of over 30,000+ librarians, booksellers, trade professionals, avid readers, and foreign rights agents.

33% subscriber increase during the past three years.

Bonus distribution at domestic and international trade shows.

83% of our readers make purchasing decisions for their library/store.

2,600 American Booksellers Association members receive a copy of each issue.

Your advertising message is being heard!

85% of readers order books as a result of an ad or review.

92% of readers reference our website.

70% of readers share their copies with colleagues, and 50% save their copies longer than three months.

Annually, Foreword has a readership of nearly 200,000 in print and 1.5 million page views online. These readers make book purchasing decisions directly from our pages and indirectly through their wholesale accounts at Ingram, Baker & Taylor, Bowker, Cengage, and many more. We offer book marketing professionals consistent visibility to the trade and a growing consumer base who are finding out about books through reviews, social media, and at trade shows.

We dedicate each issue of Foreword to the discovery and curation of notable books coming from independent presses. Our goal is to provide this information in advance of, or as close as possible to, the book’s publication date. This trade “process” is in place so librarians and booksellers have titles on their shelves when consumers hear about them.

Our review section is a constant representation of the most popular genres requested from our readers in fiction and nonfiction. In addition, three or four category close-ups in each issue are designed to give readers an idea of trends we see coming from small presses. We also highlight poetry, climate change, and books worth sharing as gifts. Finally, some issues feature a special section dedicated to the most requested books in genres including University Presses, Children’s, and LGBTQ+ titles.

REPRODUCTION REQUIREMENTS:
Preferred ad materials are press quality pdfs or jpeg files. All graphics should be at 100% size, 300 dpi. We encourage advertisers to create all web addresses and emails within your ad as hyperlinks. For information please visit forewordreviews.com/advertising or contact barbara@forewordreviews.com.

Our mission is to discover and share the best upcoming independent and university press titles, and we look forward to receiving your forthcoming books for review consideration. The editorial calendar lists the genres we’re planning to feature in each issue, but please note that we cover all genres in the general review section, each and every issue.

With your book submission, don’t forget to include a detailed tip sheet with a title description, the ISBN, the author’s credentials and an indication of how you plan to distribute. We work four months in advance, so sooner is always better. Once you have completed manuscripts or advanced reading copies (ARCs) ready for reviewers, send them our way. PDF files are now preferred, and can be sent to our Editor in Chief Michelle Schingler at mschingler@forewordreviews.com. Hard copies may be sent to Book Review Editor, Foreword Reviews, 413 E Eighth Street Traverse City, MI 49686. We look forward to seeing your books!

Paying for a review is a smart alternative if you’ve missed our pre-pub deadlines for the print magazine, have been overlooked by other trade journals, or simply need a good critique of your book from a trusted source and by seasoned reviewers ASAP.

Clarion was the original fee for review service, and its greatest value lies in the opportunity to have your titles syndicated to the wholesaler sources like Ingram, Baker & Taylor, Bowker and many more places where librarians and booksellers buy books!

Register your book today, and in 4-6 weeks, you’ll receive a 450 word review that can be used for back cover copy and other marketing materials. Plus, with your permission, we will supply it to the wholesaler databases and post to our busy website. Fees start at $549, and we also work with BlueInk on a two for one package.

Go to publishers.forewordreviews.com/clarion to begin your submission process.
Whether you’re a librarian, a bookseller, or just a general lover of books, you know that independent presses and authors are publishing some of the most innovative, creative, and beautiful books. Since 1998, Foreword’s INDIES Book of the Year Awards, have earned a reputation as the preeminent awards program for independent presses. What differentiates us is that our final judges are booksellers and librarians who use their relevant awareness and patron experience to help us choose the top titles in 56 categories.

Finalist and Winner announcements in March and June are made to a national audience, and help create renewed interest in a book that has moved to your backlist.

Winning an INDIES award gives a book additional credibility in the eyes of readers, journalists, librarians, foreign publishers, and distributors.

“Just for a moment, I’m going to gush—about how beautiful the Foreword publication is. At our library we see many review publications, but we don’t get the same sense of wonder about what we’re going to find inside as we do with Foreword. It could stand simply on the content, but you go above and beyond with both the visual aesthetic and the actual feel—and dare I say smell—of the paper (very important to the library lot)! ”—R.B., Athol Public Library

“When I have advertising dollars I only go to Foreword Reviews. Yours are the only ads I’ve seen make any traction with sales, and I tell other publishers the same thing.”—T.H., Red Hen Press

“I can rely on Foreword Reviews to introduce me to new authors and publishers that aren’t generally featured in other review magazines. The design and production of each issue is beautiful as well!”—D., Denver Public Library

Foreword has a broad palette of options to help you reach a very focused audience. Our readers depend on us to help them discover independently published books in all genres. Choose from sponsored content, print ads, eblasts, FTW weekly e-newsletter ads, website and other digital ads. We can help you with a cost effective program, and will provide design services if you need them.
